

Paul Lacey, Director

The driving force of Juno Institute, Paul, with an extensive experience base in training, people management, and business development, joined Juno in 2007 as Business Relationship Manager. He has since worked in and on every aspect of the business shaping it into its current form.

Passionate about people, leadership, sustainability, social responsibility and making a genuine difference Paul has extensive knowledge of and experience in understanding and navigating the complexities of Corporate, Government and Community.

As the Director and CEO of Juno Institute Paul is focussed on creating long-term sustainable partnerships, and ensuring Juno's programs are experiential and immersive, and that its offerings are grounded in a societal context.

An infectious style, a leader by example, Paul is proof positive that one person can in fact impact the world, to which many less fortunate in the community would readily attest.
